Introduction

As part of our PATHFIT subject, we were tasked to perform a Filipino folk dance and create a narrative report about our preparation and practice. Our group was assigned to perform the traditional dance Itik-Itik, a lively and graceful dance inspired by the movements of a duck. This dance requires coordination, rhythm, and creativity in executing the steps while maintaining the cultural essence of the performance.

To prepare for this activity, we conducted several practice sessions to plan, create, and rehearse our choreography. This narrative report presents the details of our first and second practice sessions, highlighting our teamwork, preparation, and progress in completing the dance routine.

Body

- First Practice

Attendance

Our first practice was held on January 30, 2026, from 4:00 PM to 6:00 PM. All group members were present during this session, showing cooperation and commitment to the activity. The practice took place in an open area where we had enough space to move freely while planning our choreography.

Documentation

During our first practice, we gathered as a group to discuss important details regarding our Itik-Itik performance. We discussed the proper attire we needed to wear for the performance to match the traditional theme of the dance. We also assigned partners to ensure coordination during the dance. This session served as our starting point where we organized ourselves and prepared for the dance.

Practice Summary

After assigning partners, we immediately started creating our own dance steps that we would perform for the Itik-Itik dance. Each pair contributed ideas on how to move according to the rhythm and style of the dance. We practiced simple steps while observing how the movements resemble the actions of a duck, which is the main inspiration of Itik-Itik. This helped us blend creativity with the traditional elements of the dance.

- Second Practice

Attendance

Our second practice was held on February 8, 2026 (Sunday) from 1:00 PM to 6:00 PM at Camella Fairfields, Mambog 1, Bacoor, Cavite. Although only five members were able to attend this session, we still decided to continue the practice to make our time productive.

Documentation

We practiced along a quiet street inside the subdivision where we had enough space to rehearse our dance steps. Even with limited attendance, we remained focused and committed to finishing our choreography for the Itik-Itik dance. The place allowed us to move freely and concentrate on our routine without distractions.

Practice Summary

During this second practice, our main goal was to finalize all the dance steps for our Itik-Itik performance. We reviewed, improved, and completed the choreography we started in the first practice. By the end of the session, we successfully completed the entire sequence of our dance. We also agreed that in the next practice, we would teach the completed steps to the members who were unable to attend.

Reflection

Our practices for the Itik-Itik dance were meaningful and productive experiences. These sessions showed the importance of teamwork, communication, and cooperation in preparing for a group performance. Everyone contributed ideas and supported one another in creating and completing the dance routine.

Through these practices, we not only learned the steps of a traditional Filipino dance but also developed discipline, responsibility, and unity as a group. These experiences helped us appreciate the cultural value of Itik-Itik and the effort required to perform it properly.
